

AMERICAN AVIATORS IN FRANCE ORGANIZED FOR MORE ACTIVE PARTICIPATION IN FIGHTING

Tactical and Strategic Squadrons Formed to Cooperate With Troops.

EACH CLASS INDEPENDENT

Tactical Squadron to Operate on a Range of 25 Kilometers While the Strategic Section Will Work Within 500 Kilometers; Have Busy Program

By Associated Press. PARIS, July 23.—Plans have been completed for bringing all American aviation forces here under a single direction working in connection with other military units.

Aviation squadrons will be divided into two classes, tactical and strategic. The former will operate in a range of 25 kilometers and the latter within a range of 500 kilometers.

The tactical units will co-operate directly with the troops doing preliminary reconnoitering, pursuing enemy aviators and bombarding enemy establishments.

The strategic division will operate independently. They will be engaged in destroying enemy defenses and attacking supply bases, depots and factories. They will also take part in squadron fighting and day and night bombardments. Observation balloons will be used largely as an adjunct to the artillery.

It is ordered that hereafter the names of no American officers except Major General Pershing and Major General Sibert be mentioned in news dispatches.

FRENCH MAINTAIN THEIR POSITIONS IN FIERCE FIGHT.

PARIS, July 23.—Continuing their violent attacks on the Alsace front, the Germans last night stormed French trenches on the Casemates plateau, the war office announced. On the California plateau the French maintained their supporting trenches.

GERMANS LOSE HEAVILY IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

LONDON, July 23.—German troops in German East Africa attempted to make a stand last week against the Allied forces gradually closing in on them. An official statement says heavy fighting took place in which the Germans suffered large losses.

SAILORS AND SOLDIERS THE ON RUSSIAN SOLDIERS.

PETROGRAD, July 23.—Three occupants of a motor car dressed as sailors and soldiers shot at a group of officers and soldiers on the steps of the People's palace. Two soldiers were wounded at the first shots from the revolver of the assailants. The guard of 150 soldiers rushed from the building and fired on the three men who attempted to escape, but who were lynched by the crowd. Fifteen civilians were hurt.

ENGLISH GOVERNMENT WILL ASK BIG LOAN.

LONDON, July 23.—In the House of Commons tomorrow the government will ask for a vote of credit of £50,000,000 pounds, the largest single vote since the beginning of the war. It will bring up the total for the war to £22,000,000 pounds.

RISE IN PETROGRAD REPORTED SUPPRESSED.

LONDON, July 23.—Dispatches received by the Russian embassy here state that the rising in Petrograd may be considered as definitely suppressed. The regiments which participated are being disarmed and disbanded and the city is being patrolled.

RUSSIANS ONCE AGAIN ON THE OFFENSIVE.

PETROGRAD, July 23.—The Russians yesterday attacked the Germans near Rzevo and Vilna north of the Pskov marshes and penetrated the Russian line for a distance of several miles according to an official announcement made here today. The Russians captured more than 1,000 Germans but the developments of success, the statement adds, are being jeopardized by the moral weakness and instability of certain Russian detachments.

CANADIAN TROOPS IN SUCCESSFUL RAID.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, July 23.—The Canadians carried out a daring and highly successful raid early this morning in German trenches southeast of Avon after heavy artillery preparations. The raiding party forced its way to the second line of German trenches along a front of 700 yards, where it made determined assaults on strongly fortified German positions along the Avon-Meuse railway. According to latest reports most of these positions were rendered untenable. Final details are not yet available, but at least 60 prisoners, including an officer, were brought back by the Canadians, whose casualties were light.

Section of the German Line Was One of the Most Difficult to Break.

one to fight over for behind the first line trenches are brickbats through which it is necessary for assaulting troops to force their way. When the British reached the first line trenches, the Germans turned a heavy artillery fire on them.

COMPANY D BOYS ALLOWED TO SPEND SUNDAY AT HOMES

Only a Guard of About 10 Is Retained at the State Armory Here.

VACCINATIONS ARE BEGUN

Lieutenant Rhodes, the Examining Physician, and Lieutenant Doney, the Musterling Officer, Leave the City; Company Rankers Now Full.

Company D took Sunday off, and every man who was within easy reaching distance of his home spent the day there, it being the first time that some of them had been home since the command mobilized last Sunday. About 10 men were retained at the armory as a guard. A few others, who live too far away to make the trip home in a day, also remained there.

The first unpleasantness of the mobilization came today when the company was lined up and the vaccine and anti-typoid serum administered. The vaccine will be applied to one arm and the serum to the other.

The serum will be applied by Major R. S. McKee, assisted by members of the hospital corps. The effect will be of a fever which with some takes a couple of days to work off. There will not be much drilling in the next few days on account of the vaccination. The drills will be resumed later, however.

Lieutenant L. K. Rhodes, the examining physician, left Saturday morning. Lieutenant C. S. Doney, the musterling officer, left today. The lieutenant had completed his work here but received a telegram stating that a few more forms, in connection with the discharge of the men physically disabled were being sent on for him to sign. Both go to Hagerstown.

No more recruits are needed for Company D, the last vacancy having been filled Saturday. It is not likely that any further discharges will be made.

Captain Morton has not yet received any word as to when he will leave for the southern training camp and is not likely to know until a few hours before the company is ordered to embark.

No celebration of any kind has yet been planned, outside of a banquet women of the city churches expect to give the men on Tuesday night.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the First Baptist church two women from each of the different churches were appointed to arrange details for the supper. They are as follows:

First Presbyterian, Mrs. J. L. Proudfoot, Mrs. W. R. Kenney; United Presbyterian, Mrs. J. F. Kerr, Mrs. George Holcomb; Christian, Mrs. W. H. Showman, Mrs. John L. Gans; First Baptist, Mrs. Abraham Stauffer, Mrs. L. F. Showman; Trinity Lutheran, Mrs. M. F. Robm and Mrs. S. M. Sheetz; First Methodist Episcopal, Mrs. W. R. Clasper, Mrs. Harry T. Crossland; Methodist Protestant, Mrs. J. G. Forcy, Mrs. Thomas Cunningham; United Brethren, Mrs. G. Zimmerman, Mrs. J. Williamson.

Mrs. Harry T. Crossland and Mrs. George Holcomb who will be in charge of the diningroom will select their own aides. The menu will consist of chicken and biscuits, mashed potatoes, cabbage, salad, bread and butter, jelly, ice cream, cake and coffee. Final arrangements will be made at a meeting to be held tonight at 7.30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church.

HOW THE SOLDIERS GOT THEIR 'SHOTS' IN THE ARM.

This is how the soldiers got their shots of anti-typoid serum and smallpox vaccine: The company was lined up, one man behind another, with shirts removed. Members of the hospital corps washed and dried the arms of the "victims" and painted the spot where serum was to be injected with iodine. Sergeants C. A. McCormick and P. R. Sheetz and Private Dewey Miller did the vaccinating, the left arms being thus treated. Major R. S. McKee inoculated the men with the anti-typoid serum on the right arm. Other members of the hospital corps bandaged the men's arms. Continued on Page Two.

BOYS DISAPPEAR

John Hetzel, 13, and Ray Martin, 16, Are Missed From Home.

John Hetzel, 13, and Ray Martin, 16, have disappeared from their homes here. Harry Hetzel, father of John Hetzel, is conducting a vigorous search for the pair. He has furnished the following description of his son:

Four feet nine inches tall; weighs 75 pounds; hair cut close; second tooth in upper jaw missing; wears new suit, brown and gray knee pants, black shoes, striped cap; dark complexion; red spots on back of head.

The boys were last seen crossing the Trough bridge toward the East Side about 9 o'clock last night.

Now Relief Agent.

William S. Rafferty, agent for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company at Star City, W. Va., for the past three years, has been appointed a relief agent on the Connellsville division. He will assume his new duties early this week.

DRAFTED MEN TO GET MAIL NOTICE TELLING WHEN TO APPEAR FOR EXAMINATION

Idea That They Must Appear Within Five Days of Drafting Is Erroneous.

LOCAL OFFICE IS BESIEGED

With hundreds of men crowding into the headquarters of the registration boards of District 2 and 5, Fayette county, in the Title & Trust building here, to ascertain either their serial numbers, whether their numbers had been drawn among the first few hundred, or when they are to appear for examination, members of the two boards this morning issued requests that no more men come to the offices until notified by mail to appear for physical examination.

Absolutely nothing official has been received here with the exception of some exemption claim forms. Notification as to the official quota for the districts has not been made, nor have the photographs of the blackboards containing the numbers as drawn at Washington arrived. Nothing further can be done until orders are received to call out a certain number of men for examination. As soon as those orders come, notices to appear five days later will be sent by mail to those affected.

Men who know by the newspaper lists that they will be among the first called are deluging the offices with questions as to when they are to appear. Several Indian Head men came down Saturday, and said they would appear on Wednesday for examination, Wednesday being five days after the drawing was made. As a matter of fact, it seems that the tests will not be made before Saturday, at least. Registration officials fear that hundreds of men will come around Wednesday to be examined unless this impression can be corrected.

Those who ask for the position of their numbers on the draft list are being told to buy a newspaper and get the unofficial returns. The board is unable to give out the official draft list.

A few have not yet ascertained their serial number. These are told to hunt it up for themselves on the lists posted in the Title & Trust building.

The boards assure those in the first part of the draft list that they will be notified by mail of the date for examination and advise that they postpone themselves in patience until that time.

Dr. D. D. Brooks and Dr. J. H. Hazlett, the examining physicians, members of No. 2 and No. 5 boards, respectively, will make all the tests themselves. Neither will have to examine more than 50 men a day, and extra physicians are not to be asked for except in such a case. Every man subject by these doctors, however, will get a second examination by another physician. Neither board has chosen its physician for these second tests as yet. The appointments must be approved by Governor Brumbaugh. Dr. Brooks expects that it will be possible to make 60 to 70 examinations a day.

District 2, Fayette county, will furnish 251 men for the national army, and it will be necessary to call up double this number, or 502, for examination, according to the official quotas announced. District 5's quota is 191, and the first 382 men on the list will be called.

When the men are called for physical examinations the tests will be governed by regulations just issued by Provost Marshal General Enoch Crowder. For certain heights men must not weigh below a certain number of pounds, and for each inch height they must have certain chest measurement when all air is expelled from the body and certain chest expansion. Two standards are given for weight and the measurement of the chest at expiration, a minimum, and then what amounts to a reduction below the minimum. The latter will be allowed when a man in all other respects is active, with firm muscles, and is evidently vigorous and healthy.

The height limits are from 5 feet 1 inch, to 6 feet 6 inches, letting the "bantams" and "human wireless towers" into the army for the first time. A man must be of sound mind, have sound heart and lungs, have no ugly skin or organic diseases, be in possession of all limbs and faculties, be able to read letters one-quarter inch high at 15 feet and hear a whisper at 20 feet. Mention of teeth is omitted.

In all rejections for physical deficiency men rejected will be given certificates, but these may be recalled any time and the possessor ordered into a re-examination.

All the men in the first call are not to appear on the same day, according to the provost marshal general's instructions. The list will be divided into thirds, the first third being called for the fifth day after the notices are sent out, the second on the sixth day and Continued on Page Two.

Weather Forecast

Probably showers tonight and Tuesday, is the noon weather forecast for Western Pennsylvania.

DO NOT REPORT FOR EXAMINATION UNTIL YOU GET A NOTICE.

Drafted men must not report for physical examination until they receive notices to do so by mail from the district exemption boards. The officers will designate the time and place. The exemption board in District No. 2 wants this fact made clear to all registrants.

PRESENTATION OF COMPANY FUND TO BE VERY INFORMAL

Committee of Little Club Making Arrangements; Date Is Not Yet Decided On.

Preparations are in progress to make the formal presentation of the Company D and Hospital Corps fund to Captain Morton an occasion for a gathering of the citizens of the community to give further expression of their interest in the welfare and comfort of the boys while they are "Somewhere in France."

A committee appointed by the Connellsville Rifle Club, consisting of John L. Gans, James S. Darr and W. R. Kenney, is arranging the details. No elaborate program will be prepared, the purpose being to make the affair as informal as possible. Every organization or individual which has assisted in providing the fund as well as every citizen of the community is urged to be present on this occasion that the members of the two organizations may realize that the concern in their behalf can have more than one form of expression.

It was originally planned to hold this affair on Thursday evening but the absence of the Connellsville Military Band from the city on that date at the Moose convention in Pittsburgh together with other events scheduled for that evening has compelled a change to a date not yet determined.

Further returns made by Robert Grim's team of the Rifle club and a subscription from South Connellsville has increased the fund to $1,583.43.

A number of subscriptions are expected to be added, among them the collection to be taken by the Methodist Protestant Sunday school next Sunday.

The contributions reported to date are as follows:

Connellsville:
Previously acknowledged by The Courier and Captain Morton	$1,256.43
Robert Grim's Team, (Parade Report)	23.00
Frank H. Kubler, South Connellsville	1.00
Total Connellsville	$1,280.43
Uniontown:
Total Subscriptions	402.00
Aggregate, Noon Today	$1,682.43

BLACK TO INSPECT CONNELLSVILLE TO FARMINGTON ROAD

Improvement of This Highway May Follow Soon After Commissioner's Visit.

The Connellsville-Farmington improved road is practically assured, according to T. D. Gardner of Bear Run, one of the officers of the league that is working to have this highway paved, and when, it is said, there is every indication that the work will be begun this year.

State Highway Commissioner Frank B. Black was expected to meet with the Fayette county commissioners last week and go over the proposed route but he did not arrive. He is expected to be here some day this week.

As the matter now stands the county commissioners are willing to divert the county's state-aid money, part of the state highway new road fund and some of the money which the state owes the county for state road the county has built, to the Farmington road. This will cover the expense of putting a telford surface on the important mountain highway.

With the summer excursions on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad cut off this year, Ochtoppe, Bear Run and Indian Creek valley resorts are suffering. Some enthusiastic tourists attempted to reach some of these places by automobile but only once. One man hired a taxi to take him from Ochtoppe to Bear Run one day last week, much to his and the driver's sorrow for this road is practically impassable.

With the mountain road improved the whole section would benefit.

Granted a Divorce. Mrs. Lola Shortick Pelety of San Diego, California, formerly of Connellsville, has been granted a divorce in the California courts from Guy Pelety, a former Connellsville resident, on the grounds of cruelty and non support.

Takes New Position.

Mrs. Eva Kate Allen has resigned as operator for the Bell Telephone company to take charge of the private exchange of the Superior Coal company in Connellsville.

WOMEN OF COUNTY ORGANIZE FORCES FOR WORK OF WAR

This Section Well Represented at Meeting in Uniontown on Saturday.

Fifty women, representing as many women's organizations from all sections of Fayette county, met at the Uniontown city hall Saturday afternoon and took preliminary steps toward the organization of all the women of Fayette county for the defense and conservation of the material, moral and spiritual resources of the county. Mrs. R. E. Umbel, of Uniontown was elected president of the organization which is to be known as the Fayette County Branch of the Women's Section of the Council for National Defense.

Mrs. Umbel, acting as temporary chairman, appointed five women to nominate the official board. On the election board was Mrs. W. R. Clasper of Connellsville. These five women chosen Mrs. Umbel, president, Mrs. Brownfield of Fairchance, vice president, Mrs. J. M. Young of Connellsville, secretary, and Mrs. J. M. Burhans of Dunbar, treasurer.

The object is not to form any new organization but to coordinate all women's organizations already in existence for war purposes.

Among the women registered and the organizations represented were the following, from this section of the county: Mrs. W. R. Clasper, Woman's Club, Connellsville; Mrs. Edith P. Kerr, Home Missionary of Presbyterian church, and Ladies Circle G. A. R., Connellsville; Mrs. J. M. Ward, Foreign Missionary Society, First Presbyterian church, Connellsville; Mrs. Minnie W. S. P. A., Connellsville; Mrs. Elizabeth Carroll, W. C. T. U., Connellsville; Mrs. N. W. Lessig, Woman's Club, Connellsville; Mrs. W. H. Francis, Women's Missionary Societies United Presbyterian church, Connellsville; Mrs. J. A. Lyons, Philip Freeman chapter, D. A. R., Connellsville.

A special meeting of all interested has been called for tomorrow afternoon in the Uniontown municipal building.

YOUTH IS MINE VICTIM

William Joseph Acker, High School Student, Killed at Frother.

William Joseph Acker, 16 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Acker of Leisenring No. 1 was caught by a fall of slate Saturday night in the mine of the R. C. Frick Coke Company at Leisenring and instantly killed. He had been employed in the mine for only a few weeks and on Saturday night went to work to make up a shift he had lost. He was caught by the fall near the bottom of the shaft.

The body was removed and prepared for burial by Funeral Director J. L. Stader. Funeral from the Acker home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock with interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

Young Acker was a Dunbar township high school student and was one of the best known young men of Leisenring and vicinity.

MOOSE CONVENTION

Connellsville Lodge Will Send Delegation of 500 For Parade.

Connellsville Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, will make a fine showing at the national convention in Pittsburgh, present indications are, for they plan to have no less than 500 members, in uniform, in the big parade Thursday.

A special train will leave here over the Baltimore & Ohio at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, coming here from Uniontown. With the Connellsville delegation on Thursday will go the Connellsville Military Band of 25 pieces, J. D. Madigan, lodge delegate, will be at Pittsburgh during the entire six days of the convention. The others will just go down for the big day when the parade is to be held. Andy George, dictator of the Connellsville lodge, is in charge of the local end of the affair.

Safety Gates for Uniontown.

The Public Service commission has issued an order in the complaint of the city of Uniontown against the Pennsylvania railroad in which the company is required to erect and maintain "audible and visible signals," establish a watchman and erect gates at various crossings and goings at others in Uniontown.

LAD WHO RUNS IN FRONT OF MACHINE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Game of Tag Brings Little Angelo Perello Under Wheels of Automobile.

VICTIM MAY NOT RECOVER

Miss Margaret Dull, Driving the Big Touring Car, Makes Good Stop But Child Is Crushed; Mother of Injured Boy Faints After the Accident.

Angelo Perello, four and a half years old, darting out into the street at the corner of Pittsburg and Peach streets early last evening while running from another little fellow who was "it" in a game of tag, was run over by a touring car driven by Miss Margaret Dull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dull of South Pittsburg street, and so seriously injured that he may die.

Little Angelo, who is the son of C. Perello of North Arch street, is lying at the Cottage State hospital suffering from a fractured skull and concussion of the brain. This morning he was conscious, but it was stated that his condition was most serious. A report that the boy had died last night was current on the streets today.

Miss Dull was not running more than five miles an hour at the time of the accident, her father, Grant Dull, said this morning. Had she been going faster it might have been better, he thought, since the boy might have been knocked out of the way. As it was when the child was struck by the radiator, he just crumpled up and the wheel passed over him. Miss Dull brought her machine to a sudden stop, and Mr. Dull jumped from the car and pulled the boy from beneath it, and the injured lad was rushed to the hospital at once.

Those who saw the accident say that little Angelo, running from the other boy, darted from a store doorway on Pittsburg street, and, looking back at the child chasing him, ran directly in front of the car, turning the corner at the time.

The accident caused much excitement. The mother of the injured youngster rushed excitedly to the spot and took him in her arms, according to bystanders. The sight of the little fellow, bleeding profusely, unnerved her and she fainted. Dr. E. A. McCombs administered first treatment to the lad.

In the Dull car was little Annette Dull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dull of South Pittsburg street, recently the victim of an automobile accident, being painfully injured when run over by Fred Gaus in his light roadster.

YOUTH AND BABY HAVE NARROW ESCAPE IN ACCIDENT.

James Millard and his two-year-old niece, Helen Bell Showman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Showman, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Saturday afternoon when the 415 West Peach street car struck the wagon in which they were riding on the west approach to the Yough bridge. Millard saved himself by grasping the front end of the car after he was thrown from the wagon. Little Helen Bell remained in the wagon and was unharmed when the horses were caught on East Canford avenue, after a thrilling ride up to a point opposite the West Penn waiting room.

The street car was in charge of Motorman Frank Ganoc, and although he applied the brake immediately after he saw the wagon on the tracks the car slid along the wet rails. The impact of the collision threw Millard from his seat, his arms going through the glass window in the front of the car. One of the horses was knocked down and this frightened the team, which ran off when the animal got up.

Millard was driving towards Connellsville and had just pulled up on the bridge. He was driving in the car tracks because an automobile occupied the other part of the bridge, and did not seem to hear the approaching car. As soon as he saw it he threw the team from the tracks, but the wagon did not get off in time. He suffered a cut on the face from the broken glass window, but otherwise was not seriously hurt.

Ganoc, who has been a motorman on the West Penn lines for more than a year, was finishing out his last day Saturday. He had already handed in his resignation.

HURT IN COLLISION.

Ford Crashes Into Motorcycle, Driver of Which Is Injured.

Pete Pellain, a motorcyclist who was injured in a collision with an automobile Friday night on the state road outside of Mount Pleasant, is in the Memorial hospital at Mount Pleasant for treatment. Pellain and his machine were struck by a Ford, in the car, crashing through the windshield. He suffered cuts and bruises, a broken nose, and other injuries.

The Ford driver didn't stop, and Pellain does not know who he was.

New Superintendent.

H. D. Moran has become superintendent of the Casparis plant of the Casparis Stone company. He has been in the employ of the company in other capacities. Former Superintendent Keys has been transferred to another post.

A CLOUDBURST

West Penn Station Washed Away, Tracks Flooded and Traffic Delayed.

A regular cloudburst drenched Ruffsdales yesterday, flooding the valley, tying up traffic, and doing minor damage, while other places round about Ruffsdales were not even getting a rain. At Hunter, for instance, a short distance away, it did not rain. At Ruffsdales, the rain began to fall shortly before noon, and soon came down in torrents, washing away the West Penn waiting room and decaying the tracks. The hour car coming through from Greensburg, Hunter and Altoona, was tied up for part of the afternoon and had to go to Turr, and through Mount Pleasant into Greensburg.

Annual Picnic.
Virtually all plans have been completed for the annual picnic of the Sunday school of the First Baptist church to be held Thursday in Blackstone's grove. If the luncheon and bandies are left at the church not later than 10 o'clock they will be taken to the picnic grounds in a truck. A most enjoyable time is anticipated.

Annual Reunion.
The annual reunion of the Westmoreland County Soldiers' and Sailors' association will be held August 29 at Oxford park. On account of the wartime conditions there will be no expenditure of any large sum of money.

Neuro Electrostatic.
BELLEFONTE, Pa., July 23.—Cornelius Sheppard, a negro who shot a man in Harrisburg, was electrocuted at the Western Penitentiary early today. The body will be buried in the penitentiary cemetery.

COMPANY D BOYS ALLOWED TO SPEND SUNDAY AT HOME

Don pictures of the process were taken by Conerman C. H. Balsley.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH SOLDIERS TO ENROLL ON TABLET

The proposal of Mrs. Rosa P. Lytle to supply the Christian church with a tablet on which will be inscribed the names of all members of the congregation and Sunday school who have entered or will enter the military and naval services, was accepted by the official board yesterday. The tablet will be displayed in the church auditorium.

MEMBER OF MACHINE GUN COMPANY HERE ON FURLOUGH

Charles R. Fazenbaker, who was among the members of Company D who were transferred to the machine gun company while in service on the Mexican border last year, is on a furlough from the camp of the company near Beaver Falls. He visited the boys of Company D today and will remain at his home in Everson until ordered to report.

The machine gun company mustered in 71 men and Company B of New Brighton 157 men without the loss of a man in either command on account of physical defects. A fund expected to reach $5,000 is being raised in the Beaver valley to be divided between the two organizations. The W. C. T. U. on Saturday evening presented comfort sets to every man in the two companies, the citizens turning out almost en masse to witness the ceremony.

In addition to Fazenbaker the following from this vicinity are members of the machine gun company: Harry White, Tony Ronocks, John O'Brien and Harry Hostetter.

NEW BOARD IN CHARGE OF LOCAL STATE ARMY

By the muster of Company D and the Sanitary detachment of the Tenth regiment into the federal service the local armory is automatically placed in the control of the ad-interim armory board.

The organization of the board as approved by Gen. W. Deming, secretary of the state board, is as follows: Chairman, Thomas R. Cunningham; Secretary, Alex. D. Hood; Treasurer, Harry Dunn. A meeting was held Saturday to confirm this organization.

"WE ARRIVED SAFE" IS WORD FROM ENGINEERS

The Fifth Engineers of Pittsburgh, in which are nearly a dozen young men of this section, have eluded the German submarines and arrived in England, according to a cablegram received in Pittsburgh yesterday morning from one of the members of the regiment which read: "We arrived safe." The Engineers, it had been reported previously, had arrived in France, but this story could not be confirmed. It now seems certain that the regiment is over the water.

The cablegram was dated July 22. The regiment left Oakland on July 8. Whether it took 14 days to make the voyage in order to dodge the submarines has not been divulged.

The definite news that the U-boats have been defeated successfully is a source of relief to many Western Pennsylvania residents, relatives of the boys particularly having been very anxious during the past two weeks.

The regiment will now likely be taken to a concentration camp either in England or France where it will be put through its final training. At least three months of this will be necessary, it is thought.

FRANK HETZEL WRITES FROM A FRENCH PORT

C. Roy Hetzel has received a card from his uncle, Frank Hetzel, a former Conneltsville boy, sent from St. Nazaire, France. Although the writer does not state, he is believed to have recently joined the Navy, in which he formerly served. Frank Hetzel is a brother of Health Officer George Hetzel.

GOVERNMENT NEEDS BAKERS FOR THE ARMY

A special effort to enlist bakers will be made at the Uniontown recruiting depot, since orders have just been received there, conveying the information that the quartermaster general has been directed to organize at once 40 bakery companies in addition to the 10 companies now within the continental limits of the United States.

The pay ranges from $30 a month for privates to $51 for a sergeant of the first class, and in addition the government furnishes food, lodging, and clothing. A company consists of 16 units of six men each, and has a capacity of 40,000 pounds of bread per day.

O. J. Charles, major in the quartermaster's corps, says: "This is an opportunity for strong and energetic young men to learn a trade. Men who volunteer now will have an excellent opportunity for promotion. There are about 800 vacancies in the grade of sergeant, and 600 in the grade of corporal to be filled by the most capable men. In addition there will be vacancies in the grades of first and second lieutenant. The quartermaster general has decided to offer the commissions in these companies to deserving men from the ranks."

To Teach at Seton Hill.
Miss Mary Wertheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wertheimer of Fayette street and a recent graduate of Goucher college, has been elected teacher of mathematics and German at Seton Hill Academy, at Greensburg.

Licensed to Wed.
Amato Prudente and Filomena Conte, both of Conneltsville, were granted a marriage license in Uniontown Saturday.

MAIL NOTICES OF EXAMINATION FOR THOSE DRAFTED

The third on the seventh day.

If a man is near the top of the list and certain to be drawn he can still enlist in the army or navy, until after the official list of numbers called is posted in his district.

Men wishing to claim exemption must get a blank from the local board, not until after their names have been posted in the first call, however. After this claim has been filed, there are 10 days in which to fill out and file affidavits. No lawyer is required for this. A man claiming exemption must report for physical examination just the same.

Announcement was made today of the appointment by the President of the district appeal boards in the various federal judicial districts as provided for by the selective draft law, in all but 14 states, of which Pennsylvania is one. This leads to the suspicion that the Democratic leaders are endeavoring to have the President disregard the recommendations of Governor Brumbaugh for these places.

NO. 3 BOARD WANTS PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS.

The exemption board for District No. 3, Fayette county, held a meeting yesterday morning in Brownsville and decided to request the government to appoint as assistant examining physicians Dr. L. N. Reichard of Brownsville, Dr. J. W. Gordon of Belle Vernon, and Dr. R. P. Kerner of Perryopolis. Dr. D. L. Quinn, physician member of the board, would be in charge of the examinations.

MASTER LISTS GO OUT TO EXEMPTION BOARDS TODAY.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Checking the official tally sheet of the draft was about complete today and printing the master sheet which will guide local exemption boards in summoning the men for the first increment of 687,000 troops proceeded rapidly. The sheets probably will start in the mails late today.

Regulations to govern the applications of the master lists by the local exemption boards have already been promulgated, and include a method by which any difficulties arising from confusion of serial numbers are to be overcome. The plan is to regard such registration cards as additional to the number already provided in the local lists. A separate drawing will be held by state authorities to place these cards and such other cards as may have come in by mail since July 10 in order as they are drawn. They will then be appended to the registration lists of their districts and be immediately affected by the selection drawing of last Friday just as though they had been included in the list at that time.

NO EXEMPTIONS AFTER DRAFT LIST IS POSTED

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Registrants under the selective draft law are not eligible for voluntary exemption in the regular army or the National Guard after their names have been posted by local exemption boards as summoned for exemption.

Brigadier General Crowder, Provost Marshal General, promulgated this ruling today to make definite the status of men on the registration lists who now may desire to join regulars or guards. The ruling is supplementary to instructions sent to recruiting officers by Adjutant General McClain as follows:

"After a registered person has been called for service and directed to appear for physical examination he ceases to be eligible for voluntary exemption."

ONE-ARMED EXPERT.

Frank Burns Here to Show His Skill at Pocket Billiards.

Frank Burns of Shenandoah, the champion one-armed pocket billiard player of the world, has arrived in Conneltsville and will give an exhibition of his skill at the West Penn parlors tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. Burns is one of the greatest fancy pocket billiard shots, with both eyes and fingers, in the world, according to flattering press notices from all parts of the country. He is a master of 50 fancy shots and has a high run of 95 balls in continuous pocket billiards.

Canning Bulletin Free.
Bulletins on the cold pack methods of canning and preserving and on drying sent out by State college have arrived at the Carnegie Free library and are ready for free distribution to those persons who did not receive either bulletin at the canning demonstration last Tuesday. Pamphlets from Congressman Bruce F. Stirling on "Canned fruit, preserves and jellies, canning tomatoes at home and in club work," and "Corn meal as a food and ways of using it," have arrived at the library for circulation.

First Aid Meet.
The seventh annual first aid meet of the H. C. Frick Coke company will be held on Saturday at 2 P. M. at Loucks park, Scottsdale. Elimination contests were held during the past week to determine the 12 teams which are to take part in the final contests.

New Funeral Director.
Funeral Director Edward Miner, son of Rev. D. E. Miner of Dunbar, is an assistant to Funeral Director Charles C. Mitchell, during the absence of Charles A. McCormick, who is a member of the hospital corps.

Woman Tells How $5 V of Pinkham's Compound Made Her Well.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broke in health from a displacement. One lady friend visited me and advised me to take E. Pinkham's Compound and to use E. Pinkham's Wash. I began my treatment and took $5.00 and in two weeks I was a well woman."

after three doctors said I never stand up straight again. I was wife for seven years and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every man to take before birth and wards, and they all got along so that it surely is a godsend to women. If women wish to answer I will be delighted to answer.—Mrs. JENNIE MOYER, 342 E. Nor Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularity, nervousness, backache, or bearing pains, need the tonic properties of Pinkham's Compound.

Frank Horne of Eleanor avenue, Scottsdale, who has been pitching for the Jacksonville, Florida, baseball team, came home Saturday to get some information about his draft number. Finding it far down in the list, and seeing that he would not be in the first call, he left at once for Grand Rapids, to which team he has been sold.

Horne was with the New York Giants this Spring but dropped back to the minors.

THE REAL DANGER TO U. S. IS FRIENDLY NOT ENEMY ALIENS

Ignorance of What They Are to Do May Get Them Into Trouble.

SHOULD BE PROTECTED

From Influences of the German Propaganda and Other Busy Anti-American Agitators; Can Be Made a Great Force If Properly Handled.

NEW YORK, July 18.—As a result of the work of the "secret service" agents of the states, only after Germany had apparently come into possession of the most vital secrets of the military and naval forces of the country, it was learned that Scandinavian sailors had been acting as unofficial mail carriers between this country and Germany.

These men willingly told their story to the authorities, disclosing all in the interest of right doing. The mischief had been done, however, and but for the vigilance of the United States destroyers, transports with hundreds of American soldiers would have been sunk.

It is believed by many intelligent men that the real danger to the United States lies not in the hands of the enemy alien but in the fact that hundreds of thousands of friendly aliens have no means of ascertaining what the United States expects them to do. They do not seek to harm the cause of the country of their adoption, but they turn to their nearest neighbor for instruction and that neighbor is frequently the very man that the "secret service agent" would like most to meet.

The alien problem—that of instructing enemy and friendly aliens alike and of solving puzzling questions as to his whereabouts, the positions held by him—whether he is employed in such pursuits that are of vital military importance to the cause of the allied governments and to this country—the reason for his constantly shifting about from one job to another and the other problems which arise through propaganda spread among the more susceptible people of alien nationality by German influences, are decentralized.

There is at the present time no center, either under the United States government nor yet in the states, where the alien can apply for instruction; there is no bureau which will undertake the work of intelligently surveying the various industrial plants with a view of placing or shifting alien labor to the best advantage, and after all, the alien forms the real main power of the country's industry.

Laws have been made by both federal and state legislative bodies to regulate the alien in his movements and activities. These laws have primarily been measures which applied to "enemy aliens." However, even these people have been left largely to their own devices. German propaganda has been introduced throughout every center where the other strangers within our gates predominate.

"The United States faces one of the gravest situations of the war in the alien," stated Miss Frances A. Keller of the National Americanization Committee, the only organization which is actively engaged in untangling the amazing snarl in which the alien and the American is involved.

"The utmost chaos reigns as the result of the President's War Proclamation. It is all right to say, 'Obey the law and keep your mouth shut,' but what is the law and what shall an alien say when spoken to or told to do certain things by many different officers as there are laws.

"The alien is a simple living, active, vibrant human being. He wants to know about staying in a war zone, where to get a job if he can't stay there, who is friendly and who isn't, whether his property is safe, whether the selective draft applies to him, where he can volunteer, what claims his home government has, how to become a citizen and he wants to know them all together. He has not command of English, of time, of money, of leisure, or of transportation to go to the hundreds of separate places necessary to answer these questions.

"The Americans are playing a game called 'passing the buck' with the alien. There isn't a single official place in these whole United States where he can get authoritative answers on what we expect of him, how he can be of service, what his duties and obligations are specifically. There are not two places in the whole country where he can get identical answers to all of these questions. There isn't machinery or interest enough to exchange the enemy aliens from the war zones to non-strategic industries for non-enemy aliens and save our man power.

"Something intelligent and constructive and purposeful should be done with the alien in the United States now.

"Here we have millions of men and women, born in the lands at war with each other, nervous, apprehensive, dependent wholly upon the statements printed often in foreign languages for their information concerning their status, rights and duties in wartime.

"We have these same millions willing to be loyal to America, observe our laws, give us their help, work in our industries. If they only know what the American wants them to do.

"We have these same millions open to approaches and influences and suggestions from too ardent pacifist and socialist and other busy anti-American agitators, working through a system with little or no consideration from friends of America.

"We have others disloyal—their hearts given to another country—whom we can never Americanize and whose influences and activities we must reduce to a minimum.

"It is a wonder and to the credit of all aliens that under these conditions, of suspicion, misunderstanding, ignorance, misdirection, and absence of standards that America has been so quiet at home. It is unreasonable to expect this condition to continue under the increasing strain of war.

"Let there come one great calamity that touches the hearts of Americans, whether on high seas or in the trenches, that takes a boy out of every state or town, and 'alien baiting' will run high and alien malice toward America will find vent. Is this the hull before the storm and shall we stay asleep?

"Let the conditions change and where are we? America has 33,000,000 of its people foreign-born or of foreign-born parentage. Of these four-fifths are massed in the industrial states turning out our war supplies. It is impossible that coming from every land as they do that all of those people should be for America first. It is inevitable that some can be reached by the enemies of America.

"The whole subject of caring for aliens is now utterly decentralized, neglected and disorganized.

"We are unprepared. On the alien problem we have not acted. We have not faced the facts or provided the means of handling them. It is unfair to the alien, unjust to the allies, unsafe for America. We can make the aliens in America a great force for order, loyalty, efficiency or they may become a great medium for disorder, disloyalty and labor unrest and agitation. The federal government has the opportunity to make it the one or the other."

HOW TO OVERCOME FOOT TROUBLES

If you have tired, burning, aching feet, corns or painful calluses, you know only too well the misery and torture that they bring. It is unnecessary, however, to suffer longer with any of these foot troubles. Go to your drugist and get a small jar of Ice-Mint. Rub a little of this cooling, healing discovery on your tired, aching, corn-plagued feet. Instantly the pain of corns and calluses vanishes. And shortly the most stubborn and painful hard corns, soft corns between the toes or aching calluses, will shrivel up and lift out easily with the fingers, root and all.

Ice-Mint costs little, is easy and delightful to apply and aside from removing every painful corn or callus will keep your feet cool, easy and comfortable even on the hottest days. Try it. There is nothing better.—Adv.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Circle No. 100 to the Grand Army of the Republic will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Odd Fellows' hall. A large attendance is desired.

The Business Women's Christian association and other business women interested, will meet tonight at the Federal building to see for the Red Cross. The weekly Bible study will be held Wednesday night in the association room in the First National bank building.

The L. C. B. A. will meet Wednesday night in the Parochial school auditorium.

The Woman's Suffrage Party will meet Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. E. Vannatta in North Cottage avenue.

A festival will be held Friday and Saturday night at Blitzer for the benefit of the church. The committee is composed of P. F. Chalfant, James Dillinger, Norman Brown, Charles Brown, Nora Silbaugh, Jennie Silbaugh, Helen Smith and David Ansell.

Mrs. John Strawn and Kenneth Reid won the dancing contest at the Summit Saturday night.

In honor of the 26th birthday of her brother, Fred Sandusky, Miss Bertha Sandusky gave a delightful party Thursday evening at her home in Ninth street. The affair was a complete surprise to the honor guest and was attended by about 30 of his friends. The evening was enjoyably spent at cards and other amusements. At a late hour dainty refreshments were served. Patriotic appointments were prettily carried out. Out of town guests were Miss Gertrude Durr of McKeesport; Misses Esther and Hilda Anderson of Scotland; Miss Lena Gilbert and Walter Freed of Vanderhill.

LISPING AND STUTTERING.

Children Should Be Taught How to Use Their Speech Organs.

Lisping may be caused by a lack of practice in the organs of speech. Stuttering is recruited largely from the ranks of the lisps. Children imitate the slovenly and disagreeable language of their elders.

Among the causes of lisping, in addition to the wrong use of speech organs, are abnormal teeth, lips, tongue, jaw or palate. Some cases are apparently due to carelessness or haste in reproducing speech sounds.

Lisping is not to be considered abnormal unless it noticeably persists beyond the age of five or six years. Usually the tendency to slur over words disappears rapidly in the upper grades of school. Fully one-fourth of the children entering school suffer from this speech defect.

Many educators argue that the first months of school should be given over to exercises in oral language intended to form correct habits of speech. They claim that the anxious haste of the primary teacher to teach children to read is unjustified and maintain that if one-half of the time used for phonic drills were devoted to voice cultivation many cases of stuttering would be prevented.—Pittsburgh Press.

THE ARCADE.
Coming from the Dixie theatre, Uniontown, where it played to big houses, Bolke's Footlight Rambler Girls' Musical Comedy company, today opens a week's engagement at the Arcade theatre in a dual bill, "A Night in Bohemia," which is written around the marvelous and mysterious life of the famous "Holloman," "Coco." This is the Sun Circuit's guaranteed $1,000 attraction and has special scenery, electrical effects, pretty girls, funny comedians and elaborate costumes, and each show in a complete production. The show carries 12 people and its own musical director. Every member of the company is a trained vocalist, capable of singing solos and doing a vaudeville specialty. Benny Wallace and Harry Levin are comedians that are hard to beat. In addition to this musical comedy, the spectators will witness a world famous "Holloman," "Coco," around which the comedy is written. Mr. Bolke takes a pretty dress, a block of wood and a wig and turns it into a real live woman, right before your eyes. This company has been playing to capacity houses all over the Sun circuit.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"LADY BARNACLE"—A five part Metro feature, starring Viola Dana, and a comedy are being presented today. In "Lady Barnacle," a cast of unusual favorites has been chosen to support Miss Dana. This picture is a beautiful one, and it has human interest and plenty of it. In the part of little Lakshmi, the Hindu princess, Miss Dana is irresistible. The favorite little actress wears some beautiful costumes and magnificent jewels. Lakshmi is in love, but the parents have other plans. Lakshmi is promised to an elderly admirer with a bank role and the real lover is sent away to school. At this stage George Morling, who is travelling in India as the representative of his father's silk business, visits Lakshmi's father to pay his farewell respects on behalf of his father. Lakshmi, in desperation, throws herself into a pool just as George passes and he dives in and rescues her. He slips aboard ship at night and awakes the next morning to find Lakshmi has stowed away on board. On his arrival in Boston he hides her in a trunk. Complications follow, including the arrival of the late father of Lakshmi. Tomorrow Dorothy Phillips will appear in "Pier of Rebellion," a five part Biograph feature. Wednesday, William Desmond will be featured in "Three Luck and Diamonds." Thursday, Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle will make his appearance in "Rough House," a two reel comedy.

NOW STATES SHE IS THE HAPPIEST MOTHER IN TOWN

Son's Restoration to Health Made Possible by Master Medicine.

There is one mighty happy mother in Sunbury, Pa. She is Mrs. Nellie Neuter, of 925 Railroad avenue, and her happiness comes from the fact that her son, George W. Neuter, who is one of Sunbury's best known citizens, has been restored to health.

"My boy suffered for a long time from stomach trouble and a run-down system," said Mrs. Neuter. "He had indigestion and gas on the stomach. He used to bloat terribly, and nothing he ate seemed to agree with him. I used to cook him all kinds of tasty dishes, but he would leave them untouched.

"His nerves were bad, and he did not sleep well. He lost weight and frequently had to stay home from work. Then I heard about Tanlac, the Master Medicine. I asked him to try it for me, and the results are astonishing. Just yesterday he said to me, 'Mother, I'm improving every day.'

"His stomach is again normal. His appetite is restored. He sleeps well and his nerves are quieted. Since this change for the better came over him I'm one of the happiest mothers in Sunbury."

Tanlac is being introduced here by the Connellsville Drug Co. Tanlac can also be secured in Dunbar at D. C. Eason's Drug Store.—Adv.

Miller's Anesthetic Oil, Known as Snake Oil.

FROM AWKWARD SQUAD "ROOKIES" TO WELL SET UP SOLDIERS IN TWO DAYS

Just what military training and discipline may do in a very short time is well illustrated in the two accompanying pictures, which show a group of young men as they began service in a city public park and the same men two days later, with most of them in khaki. Advocates of universal training say its good effects will not be confined to military uses, but will build up the youths and young men of the country to a condition of physical and mental effectiveness never attained before.

Sour stomach, clogged up bowels, pimples, blackheads, foul breath, are evils of constipation. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea regulates the bowels, improves the blood, cleans the stomach—a medicine—the whole family should take. 35c. Tea or Tablets. Connellsville Drug Co.—Adv.

EVERYBODY DRAFTED.

If you do not find your number among those published do not console yourself with the thought that you have escaped draft. There have been 10,500 numbers drawn, which was the number of registrants in the most populous district. It follows that every number in that and all other districts was also drawn. If your number has not appeared among the lists published it has been omitted in transmission or otherwise.

The drawing was to determine the order in which eligibles are to report for duty, not the number of them. The receipt of the official list will therefore settle definitely where your number belongs and show that you have not been overlooked by Uncle Sam.

NEXT STEP IS DRAFT.

Now that the drawing of numbers to indicate the order in which conscription eligibles will be liable for military service has been completed, interest naturally centers in the next step to be taken.

The first of these will be the certification to the local exemption boards of the lists of numbers drawn, which will be in the form of photographic reproductions of the original lists made in Washington at the time of the drawing. As soon as the official lists are received by the local boards they will be posted and each person whose serial number has been drawn notified by mail at the address given at the time of registration on June 5. This notice will state the time and place the recipient will report for physical examination, which will be within five days from the date of the notice.

The law provides that the posting of the list at the exemption board's office is alone sufficient notice. Failure to receive the notice by mail does not constitute an excuse. Therefore the duty rests upon each registrant to find out for himself whether or no his number has been drawn.

The exemption boards will meanwhile have received notification from the governor of the quota of men to be supplied by the respective districts. On this basis they will summon registrants for examination. In the order in which their numbers were drawn, dividing the whole number into at least three groups to report on different days. On the assumption that about one-half of the men drawn will be exempted for physical defects, dependency and other causes each local board will summon twice as many as called for in the quota. Thus in District No. 2, comprising the city of Connelldale and surrounding territory, 592 men will be summoned for examination; the quota of the district having been fixed at 251.

If during the course of examination the board finds that the exemptions are exceeding one-half, they will issue calls for additional men to report in the order drawn. In districts having a large number of aliens, who are not subject to service, it is very probable that the exemptions will be in a larger proportion than one out of two. In case the full quota on the first draft is provided without taking all of the men summoned, those not taken will be the first summoned when the order comes for the second draft.

Such men as fail to pass the physical examination will be at once discharged. Others will be given five days in which to file claims for exemption, and a further period of 10 days within which to file proof in support of the claim for exemption. If exempted, a certificate to that effect will be given, but this may be recalled should the board later discover that the exemption had been improperly granted. Claims for exemption on the ground that the applicant is engaged in industries necessary to maintain the army and navy are to be passed upon by the district boards, but must be filed with the local boards for transmission to the proper tribunal.

Those who do not claim exemption and those who are refused exemption, and those whose appeals from the decision of the local boards are not sustained, will form the first National Army.

The number of men desired to be raised by the first draft is 957,000, which will be used to bring the regular army and the national guard to full war strength and to form the first National Army of 500,000 and a reserve corps from which to sustain that organization to its full strength. Thus there will be at least 1,374,000 men summoned by the exemption boards to report for physical examination, and as many more, in case exemptions exceed an average of 50 per cent, as are needed to complete the quotas.

Such additional drafts as may be made will be filled by calling the men not summoned to report for examination on the first draft, in the order in which the numbers were drawn, and no further drawing of numbers will be necessary unless the necessity should arise for changing the conscription age limits, either by including men younger than 21 or older than 30, or both.

Registrants in this vicinity will therefore understand that on the first draft 502 men will be summoned to District No. 2, and 332 in District No. 3. In District No. 2 this will include the first 502 numbers drawn; in District No. 3 it will include the first 332 numbers drawn, provided the exemptions do not exceed one-half. If your number comes within the first 502 or 332 on the lists for the respective districts, you will know that you will be summoned for examination for the first draft. If it is not included in these groups, you will know that you will not be called until the second draft is ordered.

Doctor Michaelis, the new chancellor of the city, is administering bread pills to his patient while he takes time to study out what kind of a dose to prescribe next.

Whitehead had luck follows declining war on Friday and making the draft on the same day of the week will be to Germany, not to the United States.

It is time for somebody to show Senators Reed and Stone of Missouri the way back home.

Even the eighteenth have been numbered with the transgressors.

Congress and the belligerents of the Shipping Board seem to be of the opinion that war is being waged in the United States between our own people instead of in Europe against the Prussians.

Governor Neumann is evincing the veto as with vigor and his usual lack of discrimination.

THE FULL DRESS SUIT.

The full dress suit is a high priced uniform which is worn by men who feel more at home in overalls. No man ever wears a full dress suit from choice, but because in it he is taken into it by a proud-spirited wife who thinks she can make a society but out of a cabbage.

The full dress suit was brought over to this country from England, where it is still worn by lackeys, cab drivers and waiters. Its distinguishing mark of society is the coat, which is bobbed off in front and split up the back, leaving two long, restless tails which flop in unison with the step of the wearer. This is called a swallow-tailed coat because every man who puts one on for the first time has to swallow hard and hold onto something. Pants are usually worn with this coat, although this is not necessary to complete the effect. The full dress pant is a sartorial freak, trimmed with purple braid, and gives a ridiculous-looking figure with large, ornamental feet a very odd and subdued look.

The full dress suit is a shameless imitation of the low-necked corset, and when properly worn will make in the middle like a three-button sack on a ball tree. This costume, which is worn in front and split up the back, leaving two long, restless tails which flop in unison with the step of the wearer, while in the act of conveying a group to his country home, is called a swallow-tailed coat because every man who puts one on for the first time has to swallow hard and hold onto something.

The full dress suit, according to the laws of this country, cannot be worn in a public place in the evening without subjecting the owner to a fine of $100 or 30 days in the county jail. Hence some bright genius invented what is called a swallow-tailed suit, which is called a swallow-tailed suit because every man who puts one on for the first time has to swallow hard and hold onto something.

The full dress suit should always be accompanied by a crush hat and a pair of white gloves, the hat being worn under the left arm. This costume is a swallow-tailed suit, which is called a swallow-tailed suit because every man who puts one on for the first time has to swallow hard and hold onto something.

Path of Gold.

By Amelia Josephine Burr.

A path of gold—oh, build it quick and straight.

For money's feet to tread there is no time to wait—

Each minute pulses red from Freedom's wounded heart.

Make haste to do your part! Swift as they are, your gifts will be too late.

To help the dead But there are those who live, whom you can spare.

A little of the agency they bear For you—that's true; have you not thought how true?

For you. These, who have learned how much body and soul endure

Their church-bells as sweet as ours, Their gardens were as glad with flowers.

Their women were as pure, Their children sang and laughed and played

As merry and as unafraid— O little heart bowed on the desks as though

The lesson being hard, you felt asleep! We shudder and we weep—but tears are cheap.

More, more than tears must pay the debt we owe.

To those whose bleeding breasts have been our shield.

A wall that will not yield, God knows this moment is too deep for hate.

The heart is great, it calls us to be great.

Our hands shall comfort him whom it must strike—

For wounded friend and wounded foe alike.

A path of gold! Oh, build it quick and straight!

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

THE TALKERS.

I like to hear men talk, when they're not selling stock, when they can spout of luscious meat, of chipmunks, cheese and apple. But ever as I wait my soul receives a shock; the men I meet in mart or street are selling nothing stock. I never meet a point on poetry intent, who know the dose of Scott and Pope, and is on Shakespeare bent. Ah, no, the man of glib comes with his beaming smile, to sell his shares and here he comes for a while. How happy I would be if I a man could see who'd talk some time of Shelley's rhyme, and Gray, his Ekeby. To sit beneath a bush, far from the cold mid rain, and talk for hours of birds and flowers, and hand out soulful rashi! To leave the clanging streets and talk of Burns and Keats, with homely, cold and talk for hours of the best of treats. But soulful men don't walk with me around a block; the modern man hate lyre and pen—they all sell mining stock. They're all selling shares in patent folding chairs, in mines and mills and swamps and hills, in homes for poor boys, in cherry orchards, hot air, and little do they care for Gaslin's lyra or Milton's fire, or Byron's wild despair.

HORWAT FATALLY SLASHED DURING A FIGHT AT HUNKER

Mello Bzerish Is Murdered
by Mello Popovich Following Quarrel.

INGATHERING FOR RED CROSS

Supplies Made by Mt. Pleasant Chapter to be Collected on Friday: All Things to be Inspected and All But Knitted Goods Must be in Dozens.

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, July 22.—
Coroner Dr. James Harkins and Deputy Coroner Dr. M. W. Horvat, were called to Hunker yesterday when Mello Bzerish, aged 25 years, was murdered by Mello Popovich, aged 42.
Both men were Slovaks and were boarding at No. 5, Hunker brickyard.
All of the boarders had retired and these men evidently had some quarrel, and Popovich slashed Bzerish with a razor from the cheek diagonally across the chin over the shoulder down the arm. The gash was 22 inches long and there was another six inches long across his stomach. Dr. Popovich was called but the man died from loss of blood, an artery having been severed.
Later Popovich came back to the boarding house for his clothes and was held by the boarders until the state trooper, Sergeant McLaughlin came and got him. Popovich had been employed as a section hand on the Southwest branch and had been discharged for threatening the life of a fellow workman.

Dies in Swing.
Mrs. John R. Faust, aged 61 years, of Hunker, dropped dead while sitting in a swing at her home yesterday morning. Coroner James Harkins viewed the body and gave the cause of death as heart trouble.

Child Is Buried.
Francis Bittling, aged seven years,
child of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Bittling of Shupe street, was buried in the St.
John's cemetery yesterday morning.
Snapper For Soldiers.

The members of the First Ward Hose Company gave an excellent chicken supper for their captain, Arthur pleasant evening for the boys.

Red Cross Ingathering.

The fourth ingathering of hospital supplies for the Mount Pleasant Red Cross chapter, will be held in the Articles must come in half or whole dozens, Friday, July 27.
The room will be open from 9.30 to 11.30, to receive all finished garments from the different auxiliaries and units. After 11.30 the room will be closed to all except the inspecting and packing committees of the chapter.

The following instructions will be observed by the chairman of the various units:

Every article must be inspected by your unit inspecting committee, before sending to the chapter.

All linens, muslins, towels, everything except knitted woolen and outing flannel articles must be laundered.
Articles must come in half or whole dozens, except knitted goods.

Any number of the inspecting or packing committees who will not be able to be at their post of duty at the stated time, will notify the chairman of that committee several days before.

cent business visitor here.

Black Eggs.

The black Cuyana duck, a South American bird, frequently lays black eggs. The coloring does not penetrate the shell, being due to an oily pigment which can be rubbed off. In successful laying the coloring fades and disappears.

Sharing a Sentiment.

he ought to make the score, near enough even to let the enemy do some forgiving on his side."—Washington

SAILOR SAMMY IN PARIS IS GREETED WITH WARMTH BY CITY'S INHABITANTS

AMERICAN SAILORS IN PARIS

"C'est un Sammy!" The exclamation resounds in a Paris street and immediately the American sailor or soldier on leave to do a little sight-seeing or shopping is surrounded by a crowd which hushes on shaking hands with him. It is rumored that some of the fair Parisiennes have been enthusiastic enough to kiss our men, but of course the Sammys in Paris remember the folks at home and repels any such advances. Sammys are free with his money, of course. Two of him surprised Paris a few days ago by paying 120 francs for a dinner in a swell restaurant. Of course these two sailors were men of private means, but the astonished Parisians did not know that. In the photograph are some of our boys in front of the Theatre de l'Opera in Paris. The man kneeling is a Canadian soldier.

A POETESS SPEAKS

One Woman's Belief in Universal Military Training.

AUTHOR OF EMINENT VERSE.

A Member of the Vigilantes, a Committee Composed of Well Known Authors and Literary Folk, States
Her War Litanies—Extract From Poem.

Following is the patriotic creed of well known poetess Marion Connelly Smith:

I believe in universal military training and service for the following reasons:

First.—Because I believe in democracy, and I cannot honorably have the privilege of a free government unless I am willing to fulfill its obligations.
Equal rights imply equal responsibilities.

Second.—Because I believe in a citizen soldier, rather than a large standing army. The latter is essentially an autocratic institution and is the only form of service that any degenerate lotus of servitude that may degenerate into that sort of predominance over the civilian element which we call militarism.

Third.—Because the volunteer system has been proved inadequate in national emergencies. It involves inequalities in service, in privilege, in caste, in responsibility and in opportunities for training. It must apply democracy to service and make readiness a part of every man's life from the start.

Fourth.—Because the system of universal training has succeeded in other countries, notably Switzerland, and has been conducive to peace rather than war.

Fifth.—Because a woman must raise her son to be a man, and that implies,
when he is full grown, his own control over his own destiny and his individual fulfillment of his duties and obligations.
If his duty calls him to be a soldier he is in less danger, if he is physically and mentally trained from boyhood, than if he were left unprepared and militarism in any position.

Sixth.—Because, if it is the part of every man to hold his life at stake for protective duty to the state, it is the part of every woman to hold her life's treasures at stake for the same duty.
She has no right in those of purli to live under the protection of other women's sons. She must give active help and personal sacrifice. To shrink individual obligation is to incur an individual penalty in the loss of self respect and spiritual force.

Here is one of Miss Smith's latest poems:

TO THE MOTHERS.

Mothers of men, do you not know
What you gave to the world in your hour of woe?

Born of courage, and doomed to stress,
A man for the tasks of men—no less!

Mothers of women, can you not feel
What all the signs of your life reveal?
You have brought forth love, with its word and fire.

And love's high crown is the lost desire.

Mothers of men, have you not known
That the soul of the child is not your own?

If God has sealed him for pain and stress,
To hold him close were your bitter loss.

Mothers, mothers, will you not see
That your gift to the world may be These who must fight a wrong, who
Are Michael's angels, who bear the sword.

Mothers of men, then, lose your hold!
Love grants more than your arms unfold.
Under the cross you stand apart,
With Mary's sword in your dauntless heart.

Darning by Machine.

Darning by machine is easy, speedy and results in a mend that is scarcely detectable. To darn place the article in an embroidery frame to hold standily and keep it straight. Store the needle of the machine to the shortest stitch and take out the presser foot screw. Use a fine thread. Place the article to be darned under the needle,
hold firmly and move steadily back, forth, sideways or wherever you wish to go, not turning the goods around at all.

OFFICIAL LISTS WILL BE MAILED TONIGHT; ERRORS IN NUMBERS MAY BE REVEALED

It is generally understood that errors have crept into the draft figures as they have appeared in the newspapers. The numbers passed through many hands before publication and were transmitted by telegraph and telephone under high speed pressure.
As a result a number of discrepancies will no doubt be discovered. Very probably some numbers have been omitted, others repeated and still others incorrectly given.

To provide against errors of this kind the black boards upon which the original numbers were listed were photographed. These photographs have been reproduced by an engraving process and plates made from which printed lists will be made. Washington expects to mail these lists to the local exemption boards tonight. After these are received registrants can verify the published numbers by reference to the lists at the office of the board if they do not care to wait until they receive official notice by mail.

The names printed in The Courier on Friday and Saturday included all that will be called first in District
No. 2. With a quota of 251, just twice that number, or 502 men, will have to be called. William Edward Herd would be the 502nd called in this district.

Appended is a further list of men drawn in Districts No. 2 and No. 5:

1691—Harry J. Burch, South Con-nelville; John Bueckel, West Leisenring.

(The above number, if those which preceded have been given correctly, will form 382 on the list from District
No. 6, which is the number to be summoned for examination on the first draft.)

2129—Arthur Clinton White, Con-nelville.

Lest We Forget the Strife of Other Days a Stirring Event of the Civil War Sherman's March to the Sea

A Remarkable Photogravure, Size 25x36 inches 19c
$2.00 Value, With the Kobacker Compliments

The story of General Sherman's triumphant march to the sea has often set our blood tingling. He went along spreading destruction in his path, burning villages, destroying crops, tearing up the railroads and creating terrible havoc.

This ever-famous march of the Union general as here pictured, is offered at the unheard-of price of 19c the copy. The size of the picture is 25 inches by 35 inches. We have secured the rights to several hundred of these masterful pictures, which are reproductions of a famous painting, and printed by a new process which so closely imitates steel engraving that you would scarcely know the difference.

The price of 19c is exceedingly low. If you want one of these magnificent paintings, order one before they're all sold.

NATIONAL BREAD ECONOMY WASTERS AID THE ENEMY

By Herbert C. Hoover.

International expert, whose work among the sufferers of Belgium made him the choice of President Wilson for food administrator. The most talked of man in America, has written this article, expert to introduce a series by the leading food authorities of the country, to preach the gospel of bread conservation.

We must see that all bread when once made is used in its entirety.
For home consumption to waste bread is to contribute strength to the enemy.

To save bread is to help in the fight.
Those who handle wheat and flour and those who sell bread and other foods made from wheat will have to work together to make the maximum amount of saving in manufacture. But no matter how careful they may be, it is only by the assistance of the consumer in the home that the saving, absolutely needed, can be brought about.

A wider knowledge of the facts in regard to bread making, bread keeping, and bread as an article of diet would bring about the complete use of every particle of bread brought into the home. I hope we may be educated during the early period of the war to the full necessity of home care and home saving in this vital matter.

The world supply of wheat is short and we shall have a great difficulty in transporting any surplus that may exist in any part of the world to the spot where it is most needed. Above all, America can feed Europe, and it must do so in spite of the submarine menace. We shall have some surplus even though we continue our former habits of the free use and often the waste of wheat and wheat products, but we must have a large surplus and this large surplus we can acquire only by rigid economy in the use of wheat.

The United States is just coming to a realization of the world's food problem. The unusual and unique conditions now existing with the Great World problem of feeding ourselves and feeding our army abroad and the problem of feeding the production, distribution and consumption of foodstuffs. The world has been linked together in such a way that there was a flow of foodstuffs, particularly grain, to the point where they were most needed. With the changes brought about by placing several millions men on the battle line and with the early effect on shipping, all of this has materially changed, as far as Europe is concerned.

In America there always has been a surplus of foodstuffs and we have contributed materially to the support of other countries. We have never had to make a particular effort to conserve our food supply or to avoid hunger and starvation by thrift. We now find ourselves in a position where we can export surplus food that must reach Europe. If we are to win the war, that surplus will be scanty, particularly this year, because of the comparative failure of the winter wheat, and it can only be increased by the most conservative use of our supplies and by the most restricted use of food by our European Allies.

The problem of feeding ourselves and feeding our own army abroad and feeding our Allies is the most pressing one that is immediately before each and every individual. We are asking the women of the country to be the first to organize themselves for food conservation. We hope to have all of them sign a pledge to follow our directions, which will be simple and few, which will, if carried out, have a marked effect upon the food which we can export.
It will also contribute materially to getting the prices of foods upon a more satisfactory basis. The war has disturbed the ordinary commercial machinery and prices have gone far beyond the normal. This is the effect of lack of control in this country and the abnormal use of food from other countries.

"To save is to serve" is to be the motto of the Food Administration. Their aim will be to live wisely, but not too well, to eat freely but to avoid waste, to eat vegetables and food products grown near home and to save staples for export.
responsibility upon them, so that the maximum amount can be obtained from existing food supply. Bakers should encourage the economical use of the bread made from wheat and encourage the use of other flours in bread-making, and by so doing will render their country a real service. I feel that the national service.

I feel confident that the splendid volunteer spirit of service of the American people will demonstrate itself in solving our food problem and that all American producers, manufacturers, merchants and consumers will work together towards a common end.

The Secrets of the Hohenzollerns

STARTLING EXPOSURE OF INNER LIFE OF KAISER AND CROWN PRINCE AS TOLD BY COUNT ERNST VON HELTZENDORFF TO WILLIAM LEQUEUX

HISTORICAL NOTE.—William Lequeux, who has chronicled for his friend, Count Ernst von Helldorf, the latter's revelations of the inner life of the Hohenzollerns, has long been recognized throughout Europe as the possessor of its innermost secrets.

The English "Who's Who" says of him: "He has intimate knowledge of the secret service of Continental countries and is considered by the government (at Great Britain) as an expert on such matters." Another authority says: "Few people have been more closely associated with or known more of the astounding inner machinery of Germany than he."

Lequeux probably has more sources of secret information at his command than any contemporary in civil life, and for the last six years the British Government has made valuable use of his vast store of secret information through a specially organized department with which Lequeux works as a voluntary assistant.

Count von Helldorf became an intimate of Lequeux several years prior to the outbreak of the war; he has been Helldorf's confidant since that time. It was there that Lequeux received from the crown prince's late personal attendant permission to make public these revelations of the inner life of the Hohenzollerns—that the democracy of the world might know the real, but hitherto hidden, personalities of the two dominant members of the autocracy they are now arrayed against.

THE MYSTERIES OF FRAU KLEIST

THE clever intrigues of Frau Kleist were unknown to any outside the court circle at Potsdam. She was indeed a queer personage, "only one of a personage than his majesty," as Prince Bismarck declared to me one day as we sat together in my room in the Berlin Schloss.

Frau Kleist was the court dancing mistress, whose fastidious judgment had to be satisfied by any young dancer or officer before they presumed to dance before royalty at the state balls. Perhaps she was severe, but real eye I never knew.

Truly Frau Kleist, with her neat waist and thin, red face, was a very striking figure at the Berlin court. The intrigues of the minister and gawds, as well as those of the old-world dances in which she delighted, were taught by the old lady to Prince Joachim and Prince Victoria, both of whom always went in orderly file of her caustic tongue and overbearing manner.

The emperor never permitted any dancing at court which was not up to a high standard of excellence, and all who sought to dance were compelled to pass before the critical eye of the sharp-tongued old lady in her stiff silken gown.

Whence she had come or who had been responsible for her appointment nobody knew. One thing was quite certain, that though at an age when usually rheumatism prevents agility she was an expert dancer.

The old woman lived in considerable style in a blue house close to the Gendarmen bridge at Potsdam, beneath the Bismarck tower, a power to be reckoned with by all who desired to enter the court circle.

Regarding her, many strange stories were about. One was that she was an ex-dancer, the mother of the famous Mademoiselle "Cio-Cio" Durand, premier danseuse of the Paris opera, and another was that she had been mistress of the ballet at the Imperial opera in Petrograd in the days of the Emperor Alexander. But so great a mystery were her antecedents that nobody knew anything for certain, save that, at the age of nearly seventy, she had access at any hour to the emperor's private cabinet. I have often seen her whisper to his majesty's strange secrets which she had picked up here and there—secrets that were often transferred to certain confidential quarters.

Those at court who secured the benighted smiles of Frau K. at knew that their future path in life would be full of sunshine, but who belied those upon whom she kept her brows in disapproval. Frau Kleist kept her pretty house and her big Mercedes car upon the secret money payments she received from those who "for value" begged her favors. With many young officers the payment to Frau Kleist was to open the back door to the emperor's favor.

We in the Neues Palais (New Palace) knew it. But surely it did not concern us, for all of us looked askance at those who strove so strenuously and eagerly for "commands" to court functions, and really we were secretly glad if the purveyors of both sexes were well bled before they were permitted by Frau Kleist to make their obeisance before royalty.

The palace world at every European court is a narrow little world of its own, unknown and unsuspected by the man in the street. There one sees the worst side of human nature without any leaven of the best or even nobler side. The salary-grubber, the military adventurer, the plucky diplomat, the commercial parvenu, and the scientist, together with their jewel-bedecked womenfolk, elbow each other in order to secure the notice of the all-highest one, who, in that green-upholstered private room wherein I worked with him, often smiled at the unseemly bustle while he calmly discriminated among men and women according to their merits.

It is in that calm discretion that the emperor excels, possessing almost unerring foresight.

"I know! Frau Kleist has told me!" were the words his majesty used on many occasions when I had returned perhaps to express doubt regarding some scandalous story or serious allegation. Therefore I was confident that the seventy-year-old dancing mistress, whose past was a complete mystery, was an important secret agent of the emperor's.

And what more likely? The Kaiser, as ruler of that complex empire, would naturally seek to know the truth concerning those who sought his favor before they were permitted to tickle his heels or wear their stuns and bow the knee in his imperial presence. And he had, no doubt, with that innate cunning, appointed his creature to the position of court dancing mistress.

Emperor's First View of an Airplane. On October 17, 1908, I had returned with the emperor and his suite from Hamburg, where his majesty had been present at the launching of one of Herr Dillig's monster American liners. I was seated at the side table in his private room in the Berlin Schloss, taking down certain confidential instructions which he wished to be sent at once by one of the imperial couriers to the commandant of Posen.

Suddenly Von Kahlberg, my colleague, entered with a message and handed it to his majesty. The Kaiser at once grew excited and, turning to me said:

"The crown prince sends word from Potsdam that the American, Orville Wright, is flying on the Bismarck tower. We must go at once. Order the cars. And, Von Kahlberg, inform her majesty at once. She will accompany us, no doubt."

Quickly I placed before his majesty one of his photographs—knowing that it would be wanted for presentation to the daring American—and he took up his pen and scrawled his signature across it.

Within a quarter of an hour three of the powerful cars were on their way to Potsdam, the emperor with Herr Anton Reischel—a high German official at Constantinople—and Professor Yumbury in the first car; the Kaiser with her daughter, Victoria Luise, and the latter's ober-gouvernante (governess), with one of the court ladies, in the next; while in the third rode with Major von Schell, one of the eunuchs.

On arrival at the Bismarck tower I was already growing dusk, and a great disappointment awaited us. The crown prince rode up to inform us gravely that the flying was over for the day. At this the Kaiser grew angry, for he had been out only before upon a wild goose chase, only to find that Orville Wright had gone home, declaring the wind too strong.

At his father's anger, however, "Willie" burst out laughing, declaring that he was only joking, and that all was in readiness. Indeed, as he spoke, his armor came up and I presented him to his majesty.

Then, while he stood alone in the center of the great, sandy plain, Mr. Orville Wright clambered into his machine and, rising, made many circuits high above us.

The emperor stood with Herr Reischel and the shaggy old professor, straining his eyes with keenest interest. It was the first time his majesty had seen an airplane in flight. Much had been promised of Von Zeppelin's invention, yet the German public had, until those demonstrations by the American aviator, taken but little heed of the heavier-than-air machine. At that time, indeed, the emperor had not taken up Von Zeppelin, and it was only after seeing Orville Wright's demonstrations that he entered with any enthusiasm into aeronautical problems.

High above us against the clear evening sky, wherein the stars had already begun to twinkle, the daring American rose, dipped and banked, his machine drooping like a huge kaffir, much to the interest and astonishment of the emperor.

"Marvelous!" he exclaimed, as I stood beside him, with the emperor on his right. "How is it done?"

The sight of a man flying in the air, manœvering his machine at will, rising swiftly and then plunging down with the engine cut off, was one of the most amazing spectacles the loyal Potsdamers had ever seen. Even the emperor, with all his dreams of world power, could never for a moment have foreseen what a great factor airplanes would be in war.

At last Wright came down in a spiral, banked slightly, steered himself, and then came lightly to earth within a few yards of where we stood, having been the first to exhibit to the emperor how completely the air had been conquered.

Afterwards, though it had now grown dark, the emperor, by the powerful headlights of the three cars, thoroughly examined the American's airplane, the aviator explaining every detail.

From that moment for months afterwards the Kaiser was constantly talking of aviation. He commanded photographs of various types of airplanes, together with all literature on the subject, to be placed before him. Indeed, he sent over to Britain, in secret, two officers to attend the airplane meetings held at Doncaster and Blackpool, where a large number of photographs were taken, and duly found their way to his table.

The Dancing Mistress' Visit. I have recalled the emperor's first sight of an airplane in flight, in company with Herr Anton Reischel and Professor Yumbury, because of an incident which occurred that same day. Just before midnight the emperor was giving me certain instructions to be sent to Carlton House Terrace when the door opened without any knock of permission, and upon the threshold there stood Frau Kleist.

"Have I your majesty's permission to enter?" she asked.

"Of course, of course," replied the emperor, turning to his chair. "Come

A LETTER FROM THE CROWN PRINCE'S PERSONAL ADJUTANT TO WILLIAM LEQUEUX, POSSESSOR OF THE SECRETS OF EUROPE.

Venezian Station, 20, rue de la Paix, Paris, February 10th, 1917.

My dear Lequeux: I have just finished reading the proofs of your articles describing my life as an official at the imperial court at Potsdam, and the two or three small errors you made I have duly corrected.

The growing number of my intrigues which I have related to you were many of them known to yourself, for, as the intimate friend of Luise, the ex-crown princess of Saxony, you were, before the war, closely associated with many of those at court whose names appear in these articles.

The revelations which I have made, and which you have recorded here, are but a tithe of the disclosures which I could make, and if the world desires more, I shall be pleased to furnish you with other and even more startling details, which you may use at your discretion.

My service as personal adjutant to the German crown prince is, happily, at an end, and now, with the tranquility of Germany against civilization, I feel, in my retirement, no compunction in exposing all I know concerning the secrets of the Kaiser and his son.

With most cordial greetings from Your sincere friend, (Signed) ERNST VON HELTZENDORFF.

In and close the door. It has turned quite cold tonight. Well?" he asked, looking at her inquiringly.

The court dancing mistress hesitated for a second. Their eyes met, and in that glance I saw complete understanding.

"May I speak in confidence with your majesty?" she asked, advancing into the room. Except the court ladies she was the only female at court whom the emperor permitted to pass to his majesty's private cabinet.

But Frau Kleist had access everywhere. Her eyes were the eyes of the emperor. Many a diplomat, financier, military or naval commander has been raised to position of favorite because he had secured the good graces of the ex-ballerina. And, alas! many a good, honest man has been cast out of the Potsdam circle into oblivion because of the poisonous declaration of that smiling, bejeweled old woman.

"Of what do you wish to speak?" inquired the emperor.

"Of the Reischel affair," was the old woman's low reply.

At her words the Kaiser frowned slightly, and dismissed me. I bowed myself out, and closed the door upon the emperor and his clever female spy.

That she should have at that late hour come from Potsdam—for, looking down into the courtyard, I saw the lights of her big Mercedes—showed that some underhand work was in progress.

By handling, as I did, hundreds of secret reports which reached the emperor I had learned much concerning Herr Anton Reischel, and from old Von Donaustrass, master of ceremonies, I had also been able to obtain certain insidious hints concerning the intrigue.

Reischel, a burly, round-faced, fair-haired Prussian of quite superior type, held the position of chief director of the German-Ottoman bank in Constantinople. His duty for the past three years had been to coordinate the Sultan's and to lend German money to any industrial enterprise in which any grain of profit could possibly be discovered.

He had been singled out, taken from the Dresden bank, and sent to Constantinople by the Kaiser in order to play Germany's secret game in Turkey—especially that of the Bagdad railway—and to combat with German gold Great Britain's diplomacy with Tewfik Pasha and old Abdul Hamid, in view of "The Day," which the emperor had long ago determined should soon dawn.

As old Von Donaustrass had put it: "Our employer intends that, notwithstanding Britain's policy in the near East, Germany shall soon rule from Berlin to Bagdad. Herr Reischel is in reality charged with the work of 'Germanizing' the Ottoman empire."

That I already knew by the many secret reports of his which arrived so constantly from Constantinople.

Truly the game which the emperor was playing in secret against the other powers of Europe was a desperate one. On the one hand, the Kaiser was making pretense of fair dealing with Great Britain and France, yet on the other hand, Herr Reischel, was ever busy leading money in all directions in order to secure favor in Germany's interest.

Nyet a further game was being played, namely, that while the Kaiser was making pretense of being the best friend of the Sultan Abdul Hamid, visiting Constantinople and Palestine, building fortresses, endowing institutes, yet he was also secretly supporting the Young Turk party so as to effect the Sultan's downfall.

Herr Anton had been paying a number of flying visits to Berlin, and had many private audiences of both Kaiser and Sultan.

Suddenly all of us were surprised by the announcement that the Kaiser's favorite civilian in Turkey had married Mademoiselle Julie de Lagaranne, daughter of Paul de Lagaranne, son of the great French sugar refiner, and secretary of the French embassy at Rome. A week after that news was spread I met them both in Kruisler's in Unter den Linden, and there he introduced me to a pretty, dark-haired, vivacious young Frenchwoman, who spoke German well, and who told me that her husband had already given in her name for presentation at the next court.

That was about a month prior to Orville Wright's flight and the midnight visit of Frau Kleist to the emperor.

Truth to tell, the old woman's mention of Herr Reischel's name caused me considerable misgivings, because three weeks before I had gathered certain strange facts from a secret report of a spy, who in Constantinople had been sent to watch Herr Reischel's doings. That spy was Frau Kleist's son.

The Kaiser trusts nobody. Even his favorites and most intimate cronies are spied upon, and reports upon those fa-

vorful Turks. I—

"Excuse me, I—," I said, interrupting her, and speaking in French. "But it is really wise to speak this of the emperor? Your husband is, I fear, guilty of great indiscretion in mentioning such matters."

"I am his wife, count, and he consents little, if anything, from me."

"I know," she said. "That is just straight in the face in fear and regret."

Instantly I realized the serious danger of the secret being betrayed to France.

"Madame," I said. "If I may be permitted, I would urge that the emperor's diplomacy neither concerns your husband, as an official, nor yourself, in his own private affairs, and should neither be discussed nor betrayed."

"I know," she said. "That is just why I have ventured to come here to consult you, monsieur! You have been my good friend as well as my husband's, and here today, while the emperor is our guest beneath our roof, I feel that I am in greatest peril!"

"Why?" I asked with considerable surprise.

"The emperor has already learned that I know the truth regarding his secret," was her slow reply. "By what means his majesty discovered it, I, alas! know not. But I do know from a confidential quarter that I have incurred the emperor's gravest displeasure and hatred."

"Who is your informant?" I inquired sternly, eager to further investigate the great intrigue.

"A certain person who must be nameless."

"Have you spoken to anybody of the emperor's secret plans in Turkey, or of his possession of the Empress Catherine's jewels?"

"I have not uttered a word to a single soul except my husband. I swear it."

"Your husband was extremely indiscreet in revealing anything," I declared again quite frankly.

"I fully admit that. But what can I do? How shall I act?" she asked in a low, tense voice. "Advise me, do!"

For some moments I remained silent. The situation was difficult.

"Well, madame," I replied after reflection. "If you are really ready to promise the strictest secrecy and leave the matter to me, I will endeavor to find a way out of the difficulty—providing you—good German that you are by marriage—will take, before the emperor himself, an oath of complete secrecy."

"I am ready to do anything—anything for my dear husband's sake," the handsome young woman assured me, tears welling in her dark eyes.

"In that case, then, please leave the matter entirely in my hands," I said.

That same night, about ten o'clock, the emperor entered the room to which I had just returned to work.

"Send Frau Kleist to me," he snapped. "And I will summon you later when I want you, Helldorf."

Frau Kleist! I had no idea the woman had arrived at the castle. But I dispatched one of the servants to search for her, and afterwards heard her lighted voice as she ascended the stairs to hold secret counsel with his majesty.

I found the fat, fair-haired little doctor from Augsburg, who was still an enigma, but eager to see his imperial patient.

Suddenly one of the imperial flunkies bowed at the door, commanding the doctor to the royal presence, and he left me, hot and flurried.

And the emperor called the unknown doctor into consultation with Frau Kleist?

Inquiries I had made concerning the doctor from Augsburg showed that he was quite a well-known specialist on mental diseases and he had also written a textbook upon bacteriology and the brain. Why had the Kaiser summoned him? He required no brain specialist.

"We leave tomorrow at noon," the emperor exclaimed brusquely when, an hour later, I was summoned to his room. "This arranged me, for our arrangements were to remain three days longer. I recollected Madam Reischel's words."

"I do not feel at all well," his majesty added, and this Doctor Vollerthum ordered me rest at Potsdam.

In silence I bowed, and then ventured to refer to what was uppermost in my mind.

"May I be permitted to speak to your majesty upon a certain confidential subject?" I begged.

"What subject?" snapped the emperor.

"Your majesty's negotiations with the Sultan of Turkey. Frau Reischel has learned of them but she is eager to come before you and take an oath of entire secrecy."

The Kaiser's eyes narrowed and glowed in sudden anger.

A Woman's Oath. "A woman's oath!" he cried. "Bah! Never have I believed in silence imposed upon any woman's tongue—more especially that of a born enemy! I appreciate your loyalty and acumen, Frau Helldorf, but I have, fortunately, known this for some little time, and in strictest secrecy have taken certain measures to combat it. Remember that these words have never been uttered to you? Remember that! You are an adjutant, and I am an emperor. Understand! I fully appreciate and note your loyal report, but it is not woman's sphere to enter our diplomacy, except as a secret agent of our faithful hand. Let us say no more."

Ten minutes later, being dismissed, I wandered back through the great silent, echoing corridors of the ancient castle to my own room. A great human drama, greater than any ever placed upon the stage, was now being enacted.

The emperor was plotting the downfall of the Turkish empire and the overthrow of Islam in Europe. Between the all-highest one and the realization of those plans for world power stood one frail little Parisienne, the vivacious, well-meaning Madam Reischel!

Next day we left the Schloss Langenberg, but before doing so we heard with regret that our charming little hostess had been suddenly taken ill during the night, and the Kaiser, as a mark of favor, had ordered his doctor, Vollerthum, to remain behind to attend her. That Herr Reischel was in great distress I saw from his face as he stood on the little platform at Minna.

Back in Berlin, I wondered what was in progress in that far-off Schloss in Thuringia, but a week later the truth became vividly apparent when I read in the Staats-Anzeiger an announcement that Frau Reischel, the young wife of the famous Anton Reischel of Constantinople, had been seized by a sudden and mysterious illness and had developed insanity to such a hopeless degree that it had been necessary to confine her in the Rosenau private asylum at Coburg.

In a second I thought of the dancing mistress and the mental specialist from Augsburg.

Poor Madam Reischel! She died early in 1918, a ravine lunatic. Her devoted husband, having served the emperor's purpose, had been recalled to Berlin, where, bereft of the Kaiser's favor, he predeceased her by about six months, broken-hearted.

TELLS HOW AMERICAN AIR HERO WON CROSS OF WAR

Littauer's Daring Flight to "Spot" German Battery Rewarded by Success and Recognition.

For "spotting" a battery of heavy German guns in the vicinity of Dunkirk and photographing it under heavy fire Kenneth Proctor Littauer, a graduate of the Central high school of Washington, has just been awarded the Croix de Guerre.

Littauer entered the aviation service in March, 1916, and received the brevet the following day. For about eight months he did routine reconnaissance work on the front near Dunkirk, flying with the Franco-Belgian escadrille. He had already won a name for himself for his coolness and daring under fire, but it was not until recently that he came under the official eye of the French government.

Information reached the general in command of the sector that the Germans had installed a battery of heavy guns just beyond the French lines in a position where it could drop shells almost within Dunkirk and cause an enormous amount of damage. The general decided to "spot" the battery and turn his heavy guns against it. To "spot" a heavy battery well beyond the advanced lines is always dangerous work.

Young Littauer—who is only twenty-two—was asked if he would undertake it. He jumped at the chance.

On one of the bitterest afternoons in February he set off from the French base in a heavy "spotting" machine, although he knew he ran a great risk of being attacked by the enemy fighting planes, infinitely swifter than his own.

After circling about for half an hour the aviator finally located the German battery at the same time his gunners perceived him. Littauer snapped a number of photographs of the location, and simultaneously the German high angle guns opened fire. The American was still a little more than a mile above the ground, but he knew that the German guns had the reputation for hitting anything below 20,000 feet.

Littauer had to recross the German lines where smaller guns now got into action. When he was directly above the last German trench, a shower of shrapnel struck the left motor, causing the machine to rock and gyrate sharply.

In a dash Littauer shut off the other motor and started to drop, in the meantime working his damaged machine away from the German lines.

The German gunners, thinking the machine had been vitally damaged and that perhaps the occupants were dead, ceased firing. When within 300 feet of the ground Littauer pointed the machine's nose straight for the trench, and a crash followed. Every bone in the young American's body was jarred. The padded seat was torn from the craft, and the observer was hurled ten feet away. Littauer's camera was smashed, but through some miracle the photographic plates were unbroken.

The pictures were developed, and subsequently the German battery was reduced to silence. In a citation the French war office commended the American for his coolness and bravery under fire and for rendering signal service.

One Ohio Design. A charming little summer frock of rose color chiffon voile boasts an apron of the material almost covered with conventionalized pansies in rose color.

A deep band of embroidery finishes the skirt, and the bodice and sleeves are trimmed with it. Such a frock could be reproduced very inexpensively by the home seamstress, and it is delightfully pretty and summery in the sheer, soft voile.

FROST DESCRIBES U BOAT HORRORS

Calls Submarine Warfare as Practiced Deliberate Murder.

SURVIVORS LEFT TO DROWN

Torpedoed Ships Often Sink in Two Minutes—Not Germans' Fault, He Says, That Every Missile Does Not Cause a Lusitania Massacre—Fire Torpedoes While Submerged.

With the approval of the government Wesley Frost, former United States consul at Queenstown, who saw much of the horrors of ruthless submarine warfare, gave an interview about U boats. Mr. Frost is in Washington, resting after the nervous strain due to his work abroad.

"The submarine war grows more barbarous every day," Mr. Frost said. "It has now reached the plane of deliberate murder for every ship sunk and will so continue to the end. It is not the fault of the Germans that every torpedo does not produce a Lusitania massacre."

"Now that the submarines have been driven to attack ships submerged, using the torpedo almost exclusively, the murder roll is bound to grow. Most ships when struck by a torpedo go down in two or three minutes, which gives no opportunities of escape to those below decks."

Ships Sink Quickly. "Recent sinkings which came under my observation since the beginning of the ruthless warfare show this conclusively. A freighter loaded with iron ore and conveyed by a destroyer went down in two minutes. Eighteen of her crew of twenty-six were drowned. Another sank in two minutes after being struck. She was hit in daylight, but the submarine was not seen. Twenty-eight of her crew of thirty-two perished. The Adonis sank in three minutes, and thirty women and children died."

"Sinkings of this sort from now on will be the rule, not the exception. The submarines are now so fearful of exposing themselves to the deck guns of slowly sinking ships that they seldom come up to question the escaping crews of passenger ships. Out of six passenger ship sinkings investigated by me this happened in only one case—that of the Laconia, which was sunk near midnight."

"The warning given before merchantmen were armed was only to save the expensive torpedoes—worth $7,000 apiece—of which a submarine can carry only a few. When the ship gave signs of distress the firing generally stopped, and the boarding party from the submarine destroyed her with bombs."

Crews Left to Starve. "The crews of destroyed ships were left to die from starvation or drowning. Their sufferings were terrible. Many of them were never picked up. The men probably went mad and leaped into the sea. In the case of the Cairnhill, a British freighter with a crew of sixteen men, five of whom were Americans, the Germans deliberately gutted the lifeboat, took the provisions which the men had placed in the boat and threw them into the sea, and the water keel of fresh water and, to make their job complete, filled it with salt water. The boat's sails were taken off, and that was practically the only hope of getting to land if the wind were favorable. She was attacked 150 miles out at sea."

That these men were saved was almost a miracle. Mr. Frost thus described another case:

"The American schooner Woodward was attacked 400 miles off shore. Captain Van Nammé and the crew of eight were put in a lifeboat while the Germans set the lumber schooner ablaze with incendiary bombs. The American sailors drifted about the Atlantic for two days and two nights, when they were picked up by another lumber schooner, the Norwegian Anna Maria. She was torpedoed 200 miles off shore, and the men again took to the lifeboats. The crew of the Anna Maria never saw again. After another twenty-four hours adrift Captain Van Nammé and the Americans were picked up. Their luck held, and they lived. The Norwegian died."

Mr. Frost said some of the submarine commanders delighted, accounts of survivors proved, in making their work deathly.

DANES BUILD WOODEN SHIPS. Try This Plan to Offset Loss Caused by Submarines.

The plan to build a great fleet of wooden vessels as a means of offsetting shipping losses due to submarine warfare finds a parallel in Europe, where the Danes have hit upon the same expedient. At many points in Denmark temporary arrangements have been made for the laying down of wooden ships. Some industries are threatened with stoppage due to the lack of raw materials, and the workers can thus be given employment in the shipyards building these new vessels.

The vessels being constructed are of a standard type, three to four masts, and having a loading capacity of 500 to 600 tons. These ships also will be furnished with motors.

NEWS OF THE DAY AS GATHERED UP IN BUSY MILL TOWN

Gathering of Scottdale
Red Cross Supplies on Friday All Day.

FLAG RAISING AT EVERSON

Polish Church Congregation Unfold.
Handsome Emblem With Appropriate Exercises, at Which Attorney Cray is Speaker; Other Notes.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, July 23.—Pastors here and in the immediate vicinity exchanged pulpits yesterday.

Form Red Cross Unit.
The ladies of the Reformed church have organized a Red Cross unit with Mrs. Rosenzweig as chairman and Mrs. P. O. Peterson as secretary.

Red Cross Ingathering.
The fourth "Ingathering" for the Scottdale auxiliary of the Mount Pleasant Chapter of the Red Cross will be held in the brick school building, corner Main and Church streets, Friday, July 27. The rooms will be open from 9:30 until 11:30 to receive donations from the different auxiliaries and units. After 11:30 the room will be closed to all except the inspecting and packing committees of the chapter. The chairman of the various units are the members of the inspecting committees of Scottdale and must inspect every article before sending to Mount Pleasant. All items must be in good condition. Knitted woolens and outing flannel articles, must be laundered. Articles must come in half or whole dozens, except knitted goods.

Polish People Raise Flag.
Polish people of Everson under the pastor of the St. Joseph's church, Father Lipiski, held a flag raising on Saturday afternoon. The flag raised was a handsome one and makes a beautiful appearance. The principal address was made by Attorney James R. Gray of Uniontown. Several prominent members of the St. Joseph's congregation took part in the exercises and made short addresses. Visiting Polish people were present from Connelville, Mount Pleasant and other parts of the Ohio region.

Ready to Operate.
The Sanitary Chemical Manufacturing company has completed the repairs on the old brewery and will occupy it this week. Owing to the scarcity of labor they have abandoned the idea of a private siding for the present. Wilfred S. McKoon, with Robert K. Smith of Dunbar township and Walter Evans of Mount Pleasant township, were at Ingomar looking over a plant installed at the Kaunting Waterless Tank. This will be a specialty of the Sanitary Manufacturing company.

John Company E.
Earl B. Gilling and William Shalvender of Owensdale joined Company E. Tenth Regiment, yesterday, and William H. McClean made application to join Company E yesterday, but was turned down on account of his eyes.

Back From Fishing Trip.
Robert Glickert and Arthur Newman returned home last evening from a fishing trip along the Cheat river bringing with them a good string of fish and a live American hoot owl, which is on exhibition at the Elks' rooms here.

Notes.
Miss Lucina Engle returned to her Whitney home yesterday, taking with her Miss Rita King as her house guest.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Hambray spent yesterday at Brownsville.

T. Brown of Brownsville motored over yesterday and called on friends.

Mrs. L. D. Coughenour entertained at her home on Friday evening in honor of the Scottsdale boys who were members of Company B. Games and music were the amusements of the evening. Refreshments were served.

Obiopyle.

OBIOPYLE, July 23.—Miss Frances Thorpe spent Saturday shopping and calling on Connelville friends.

Miss Ethel Stuck returned Friday from a short visit spent with Mount Pleasant friends.

Mrs. Daniel Hall returned to her home at Connelville Saturday after a several days' visit here.

Mrs. W. H. Katterly and daughter, May, have returned from a short visit with Mount Pleasant friends.

Mrs. Elsie Hamilton and children spent Saturday and Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thorpe at Indian Creek.

Mrs. Newell Burnworth was shopping in Connelville Saturday.

Glenn Gadsdill of South Connelville, spent Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Gifford at Lower Garrett street.

G. S. Santy of Connelville, was a caller here Saturday.

Mrs. Charles Robinson, who has been visiting in Connelville, is the guest of relatives here for a few days.

R. J. Horton of Connelville, was a business visitor here Saturday.

Miss Pearl McFarland of Scottsdale, is visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Linton Joseph were among the Connelville shoppers Saturday.

Misses Ouna and Mildred Harbaugh of Victoria, were calling on Obiopyle friends Sunday.

Frederick Hafferty of McClellandtown, spent Saturday and Sunday at his home here.

GRANT, NEW VICE ADMIRAL,
IS PUT IN CHARGE OF PART OF MAIN AMERICAN FLEET.

VICE ADMIRAL ALBERT W. GRANT

Rear Admiral Albert W. Grant was appointed a vice admiral by President Wilson. The promotion is part of a general reorganization of the Atlantic fleet, which has been ordered by Secretary Daniels to meet new problems resulting from expansion of the force to almost twice its normal size.

Admiral Mayo, the secretary said, will remain in general command, with the immediate authority under him divided between Vice Admiral Coffman, at present second in command, and Vice Admiral Grant. The former is to have direct command of a division containing most of the superdreadnaughts and designated as "Force No. 2" while Vice Admiral Grant will command the remainder of the fleet under the designation of "Force No. 1."

It is understood that the reorganization will not affect the division of the fleet now in European waters under Vice Admiral Sims.

Vice Admiral Grant will be succeeded as commander of the submarine force by Captain S. S. Robinson, now commanding the battleship South Carolina.

Vice Admiral Grant was chief of staff of four successive commanders of the Atlantic fleet—Admirals Thomas, Sperry and Schreeder—and was in command of the superdreadnaught Texas when he was selected to head the submarine force.

CONVEX LENS OF THE EYE.

A Burning Glass That Adjusts the Sight to Varying Distances.

One of the manifold wonders of the human eye is the convex lens with which the focus distances of sight are made instantly and without mental effort. This lens in the eye is a "burning glass," as may be shown by the simplest of experiments.

Let the person at midday hold a straw against the face of the sun and focus his eyes on the straw. He can look at the straw, with its background of a dazzling sun, and without discomfort. But the moment he looks at the fiery ball of the sun itself subconsciously the lens of the eye comes to its proper focus, with the result that a "burning" sun spot appears on the retina of the eye, and it is said that a few seconds of such looking would burn out the retina as if by fire itself.

In the subconscious adaptability of the eye lens to adjust itself to different distances lies its value to the human sight. The man with a camera adjusts the focus of his lenses by sliding them forward and back. The lenses of the human eye, by changing their curvature, allow of one looking at a fine print six inches from his nose and in a fraction of a second to look up and away, probably fifty miles to a mountain peak that in an instant is in true camera focus.—Pittsburgh Press.

NEGLECTED FOODS.

Their More Liberal Use Would Be a Help in Home Economy.

Among the foodstuffs that American housekeepers have scarcely utilized are turnip tops, radish tops, mustard plants, sorrel and chick peas among the vegetables and the cheese product that can be extracted from whey.

The greens mentioned may all be cooked like spinach or they may be made into delicious cream soups, as they have been for centuries by European housewives. Enough sorrel grows in the average vacant lot in every city to make many purées or cream soups. Chick peas are as nutritious as beans and when served in a broth are just as tasty. They also can be made into a puree.

Radish tops and mustard leaves make a cheap and appetizing salad.

Professor Mary F. Satchell in a lecture at the University of Washington gave some hints about home economies, one of which was that foods in shallow pans cook more rapidly than in deep pans, thus saving gas. Another was that not a scrap of fat of any sort need be thrown away, but all should go into a double boiler and be tried out for use in frying or as shortening for pastry.—New York World.

Quaker Cemetery in Prospect Park.

There is a Quaker cemetery in Prospect Park West, Brooklyn. The cemetery is much older than the park, and when the park was organized it was done with the understanding that the Friends' burying ground was not to be disturbed. The park will probably always be kept. The cemetery covers several acres—say, from eight to ten—and is beautifully situated on one of the most commanding hills in the park.

Those who visit Pomplun for the first time are struck by one significant feature of these little houses whose owners have been dead for 2,000 years. That is the faces which are often carved over the door or in the atrium and intended to convey a welcome or a defiance to the entering guest. The New House, as it is called, because it is the last rescued from the tomb of ashes has before it two marble heads on pillars rising from beds of rock. Their faces are turned to greet the stranger with gay, friendly smiles. No one could enter a house which gave him so cordial a welcome without a happier throbbing of the heart. In the entrances of some of the other houses are set angry, frowning heads of demons.

In the entrances of some of the other houses are set angry, frowning heads of demons.

Those who visit Pomplun for the first time are struck by one significant feature of these little houses whose owners have been dead for 2,000 years. That is the faces which are often carved over the door or in the atrium and intended to convey a welcome or a defiance to the entering guest. The New House, as it is called, because it is the last rescued from the tomb of ashes has before it two marble heads on pillars rising from beds of rock. Their faces are turned to greet the stranger with gay, friendly smiles. No one could enter a house which gave him so cordial a welcome without a happier throbbing of the heart.
